5:00 pm – Revenue Mobilization and International Taxation: How Reforms can Venue: IMF HQ2,

6:10 pm Help Encourage Economic Development

Conference Hall 2

Higher government revenues would create much-needed fiscal room for maneuver and allow for more spending on things that drive economic growth over the medium term, including infrastructure, healthcare, and education. Given the effects of low commodity prices and various geopolitical factors, what are the main challenges governments will face as they attempt to design suitable taxation policies and spending programs? The international tax system must work for everybody, by discouraging overly aggressive tax competition among countries and the artificial shifting of profits and assets to low-tax locations.

Speakers:

- Winnie Byanyima, Executive Director, Oxfam International

- Vitor Gaspar, Director, Fiscal Affairs Department, IMF
- Jim Brumby, Director, Public Service and Performance, Governance Global Practice, World Bank Group

8:00 am –	Climate Change and Cleaner Energy Solutions	Venue: WB HQ
9:15 am		Preston Auditorium
	Parliamentarians have an essential role to play in contributing to the success of policies to combat climate change. Following the COP21 agreement in 2015, legislators share the responsibility to ensure that the pledges are translated into policy action in their home countries. Removing energy subsidies and installing measures for pricing carbon are some of the best alternatives to

12:00 pm – Realizing the Gains from Gender Equity

Venue: WB HQ

1:00 pm

Preston Auditorium

Despite progress, wide gaps persist between women and men's economic empowerment and opportunity. Legislators need to tackle the considerable gender gaps in access to education, health and finance in a number of countries. With mounting evidence that the lack of gender equity imposes large economic costs as it hampers productivity and weighs on growth, increasing women's participation in the economy will increase profitability and contribute to shared prosperity.

MPs around the world need to step up their efforts to improve the health of their citizens. MPs play a vital role in a range of strategies, including delivering universal health coverage, taxing tobacco, improving food labelling and fighting tax, trade and insurance policies which impact on the poor. New threats are emerging such as drug-resistant pathogens, the globalized marketing of unhealthy products, and the growing rates of chronic non-communicable diseases such as heart disease, cancer and diabetes have overtaken infectious diseases as the world's biggest killers. To address these and other questions in the field of health, including women's and children's health, MPs need to strengthen their collaboration with the leading international organisations working on improving global health.

Speakers:

- Alpha DIALLO MP, Guinea
- Miriam Schneidman, Lead Health Specialist, Eastern and Southern Africa, Health, Nutrition and Population Global Practice, World Bank Group
- Joanne Carter, RESULTS

Moderator: Betty McCollum, Congresswoman, United States

3:15 pm –
4:30 pm

Capacity Building for the 21st Century

Venue: WB HQ

Preston Auditorium

It has been long recognized that institutions play an important role in fostering macroeconomic stability and economic development. The quality of economic institutions—including ministries of finance, central banks, and statistical agencies—hinges on the people running them, their approach to policymaking, and the legal and governance structures that underlie them. By strengthening capacities and training officials in economic analysis and policies. countries are better able to implement key economic policies and programs. The session will discuss the challenges in capacity building and needs of member countries now and in the future.
